

Motivation Letter

Application for Studying In University of NANJING

To whom it may concern

In addition to all my documents provided, I would like to take this great opportunity to write a motivation letter to clarify my main reason that drives me to study in University of NANJING. After graduation from University of Agriculture Faisalabad Pakistan major in Agriculture Extension, I acquired knowledge in an extensive Agriculture area, for example, Extension, Rural Development etc.

Currently, I am working at department of Agriculture Extension provisional Government of Punjab Pakistan for last 3 years. My responsibilities include report compilation, extensive research, Meeting minutes recordings and PC 1 preparation.

I believe that my current working experience is the main reason that drives me to study in CHINA. By choosing to study University of NANJING, there are a few advantages that I can achieve my goal:

By getting the Education in the Agriculture, I will be able to explore the more opportunities in the Agriculture field. The Agriculture sector of Pakistan is growing but there is need to deal with the International concerns and understand the agriculturist conditions. It will be provide me a chance to start working on the betterment of Agriculture Sector ok Pakistan.

CHINA is a multicultural country, and University of NANJING is a well-known multicultural university. I can learn how to interact within different cultures to improve my interpersonal skills. I also can build up a network that comprises friends from different countries and areas. CHINA has good relationship with Pakistan. And now Pakistan is becoming certainly the biggest potential market for CHINA. With my multi- culture background and CHINA experience and skills, when I have completed study in CHINA and returns Pakistan, I can participate into the development of Agriculture cooperation or any other relationship. In short, by choosing to study in University of NANJIN, I will benefit greatly from
